ABOUT

Simon has a background in mechanical design and over 30 years in and around the construction industry.

He has been supporting Autodesk products since 2007 when his work as an Authorised Autodesk Trainer gave him continual exposure to the latest technology and workflows.

Initially very mechanically biased, Simon branched out on his own, qualifying as an electrician. He spent several years installing systems rather than designing them, before eventually returning to work for an Autodesk Platinum Partner in 2016, a more well-rounded consultant.

With both commercial and technical experience, he has worked with clients large and small, supporting them in their journey into more efficient and collaborative ways of working.
